B10. Significance

The property at 938 Villa Street has been home to some of Mountain View's more prominent residents, including Julius Weilheimer and his family. The Weilheimer's were well-known merchants in Mountain View, and the house was built for Julius and his new wife, Fannie Ickelheimer Weilheimer. Built circa 1894, it is a survivor of the 1906 earthquake. Julius Weilheimer inherited the Weilheimer Store at 124 Castro Street from his father, and was postmaster between 1886 and 1889. He was also a bank officer and member of the first Board of Trustees for the town of Mountain View until 1907. Another prominent resident of 938 Villa was Arthur Free, who was, at various times, postmaster of Mountain View, City Attorney, and a Congressman. Free resided in the house until 1914.

The property at 938-970 Villa Street does not appear to possess sufficient historic significance for listing on the National Register of Historic Places or the California Register of Historic Places. However, it appears to posses the historic significance and integrity needed for Mountain View Register of Historical Resources eligibility.

This building is significant for its architectural distinction as an excellent example of a Queen Anne style cottage (MVRHR Criterion 3). It is also significant for its association with the life persons significant in the past, Julius Weilheimer and Arthur Free (MVRHR Criterion 1). Archival research did not identify historical associations (MVRHP Criterion 2) and the building does not appear to be important as an artifact (MVRHR Criterion 4).

The building maintains high integrity. Its location, setting, design, materials and workmanship are intact. Per Section 1.4.c.of the Mountain View Interim Urgency Ordinance for Preservation of Historical Resources (Ordinance No. 7.02), feeling and association are not included in the definition of integrity.

B10. Significance

The property at 954 Villa Street does not appear to possess sufficient historic significance for listing on the National Register of Historic Places or the California Register of Historic Places. However, it appears to posses the historic significance and integrity needed for Mountain View Register of Historical Resources eligibility.

This building is historically significant for its direct association with the 20th century development of Mountain View's downtown (MVRHP Criterion 2) and for its architectural distinction as an excellent example of a Spanish Eclectic style commercial building. (MVRHR Criterion 3). Archival sources did not indicate association with the lives of persons significant in the past (MVRHR Criterion 1) and the building does not appear to be important as an artifact (MVRHR Criterion 4).

Despite alterations, including the addition of the new aluminum door and window systems, new mechanical system units on the roof and one side of the building, and the addition of the rear awning and tented area, it retains sufficient integrity to convey its historical association and architectural distinction. Its location and setting are intact; its design, materials and workmanship are only partially compromised. Per Section 1.4.c.of the Mountain View Interim Urgency Ordinance for Preservation of Historical Resources (Ordinance No. 7.02), feeling and association are not included in the definition of integrity.
